Rick has focused his practice on civil and construction litigation for over 40 years. In the early 1980's, he formed a partnership known as Horne, Bistrow and Kaplan, P.C., which was one of the leading boutique construction law firms in Arizona.

Throughout his long and varied career, Rick has handled numerous complex construction matters for owners, architects, contractors, sub-contractors and suppliers. As a young lawyer, he successfully prosecuted a construction case involving a hotel in downtown Phoenix that resulted in judgment against the contractor for $1.6 million. He also successfully defended the State against road builders who sought multi-million dollars in damages arising from allegedly negligent construction designs or differing site conditions. He has handled many matters involving mechanics liens, construction defects, delay claims, contract interpretations, Miller Act and Little Miller Act suits, licensing, surety, and bad faith matters.

Rick has also acted as first chair in several jury trials and was lead counsel in numerous arbitrations and court trials. In 2005, the Arizona Department of Education asked Rick to serve as lead counsel in Flores v. Arizona, after Arizona was fined $2 million a day or $720 million a year by failing to comply with the Equal Education Opportunity Act of 1974. This high-stake case resulted in three trials, two trips to the Ninth Circuit, and one trip to the United States Supreme Court, where the Department's position was vindicated in a 5-4 decision. The Flores case was important not only because of the financial consequences, but also because of the guidelines promulgated by the Supreme Court as to how public bodies can remedy violations of federal law.

Finally, in 2011, Rick was asked to serve Arizona as Chief Deputy of the Office of the Attorney General. He spent four years in that capacity. Five separate division chiefs reported to him: 1) criminal; 2) civil; 3) public advocacy and civil rights; 4) child and family; and 5) solicitor general. THOMPSON, ROBERT L.

Robert L. Thompson is an Associate Attorney at Resnick and Louis' Las Vegas office. His primary practice areas include general litigation, premises liability defense, automobile defense, and construction law. He has been practicing in Las Vegas for over a decade and a half where he developed numerous relationships with members of the legal industry, expert witnesses, medical professionals, mediators, and the courts. He utilizes his experience as part of an effective strategy towards winning cases and getting the best resolution for his clients. Mr. Thompson believes that communication is an often-overlooked aspect of litigation. This includes developing effective working relationships with the clients from the start of their cases, working with opposing counsel in a professional and courteous manner, and being straight forward with mediators and the judges on issues that are not negotiable while at the same time working in a professional manner to achieve the best result. At the end of the day, he believes good communication from the start of the case will carry over to trial where the goal is to persuade the jury to find in favor of the client's position.

Mr. Thompson got his start representing subcontractors in contract litigation during Nevada's construction boom in the early 2000's. He moved onto taking cases for automobile driver's being sued by personal injury lawyers as well as business owners and casinos who find themselves involved in litigation for premises liability cases. Mr. Thompson has represented his clients effectively in all aspects of trial preparation from depositions, mediation, arbitration hearings, and, when necessary, taking cases to jury trial. Mr. Thompson continues to represent people and businesses to make sure their voices are heard in all matters of civil litigation practice.

Mr. Thompson graduated from Drake University Law School in Des Moines, Iowa in 2005. During his time in law school, he participated in Drake's Legislative Practice program gaining first-hand experience as a legal intern in the Iowa legislature, and the Iowa business lobby during the legislative session. Before moving to the Midwest to attend law school, he received his undergraduate degree from Rutgers University in New Brunswick, New Jersey. Mr. Thompson also proudly served as a member in the United States Coast Guard.

Robert is licensed to practice law in the Nevada Supreme Court, the U.S. District Court for Nevada, and the Ninth Circuit U.S. Court of Appeals.
